jet-power convair 580

LAKE CENTRAL

fully pressurized & air conditioned

Pressurization and Air Conditioning systems on the Convair 580 are basically the same as before the conversion to prop-jet power. You may notice a slightly increased volume of air which will essentially aid the heating and air conditioning of the aircraft.

Since the pressurization and conditioning/heating systems on the Convair 340 have proved to be effective, no changes will be effected immediately, although Lake Central has under study a new system for on-the-ground heating and air conditioning.

climbs three times faster

Each of the two Allison prop-jet engines has 3750 horsepower. This means two of the prop-jet engines can do as much work as three piston engines—or a 50% increase in power. The added thrust and broad, four blade propellers give the 580 a climb rate three times greater than the piston Convairs. At an average climb angle, the 580 will have you at 10,000 feet in less than six minutes.

The faster take-off and landing characteristics of the 580 enable your Lake Central pilot to attain and maintain the top cruising speed for a longer period of your flight—thus saving time from one airport to the next.

Lake Central Airlines is proud to introduce the Prop-Jet Convair

580

Lake Central Airlines is converting its fleet of piston-powered Convair 340's to prop-jet power, using Allison 501-D13 turbine engines and Aeroproduct propellers. The jet-powered aircraft, designated the Convair 580, will provide greater speed, comfort, and reliability for Lake Central passengers.

The first jet-powered 580 went into service in May 1960. Twenty-six of the aircraft, including five operated by the Federal Aviation Agency, were in corporate service by 1964, when the aircraft first went into scheduled airline service. Allison prop-jet engines on military, corporate, and airline aircraft had accumulated in excess of 20,000,000 flight hours at the time Lake Central announced its decision to purchase the Allison conversion in May 1966.

The Convair 340 has performed well for Lake Central since 1961. Coupling this aircraft with the tried and true Allison engines should provide a pleasant new experience in air travel for Lake Central customers.

minimum vibration

Prop-jet power provides a smoother ride for Lake Central passengers—vibration is minimized. The noise level inside the 580 cabin is much lower than on a piston aircraft, and Lake Central's Convairs have always been radar-equipped, allowing pilots to avoid turbulence whenever possible.

The smooth ride and low noise level of the 580 mean you'll arrive at your destination more relaxed and refreshed. Prop-jet power takes the "tired" out of travel.

greater capacity

With the added power of the Allison prop-jet engines, more passengers and cargo can be carried. Lake Central is installing 55 new colorful seats in the Convair 580's. The new passenger configuration will save disappointment for eleven passengers who may have been left behind in a 44-passenger Convair 340.

The "Airest" seats on the 580 are manufactured by Burns Aero Seat Company, Burbank, California. They are designed especially for airlines such as Lake Central, which have a commuter-type operation. For greater convenience, trays are attached to the seat in front of each passenger, and each seat reclines slightly for those who prefer to doze, rather than partake of Lake Central's beverage service.

100 mph faster

The prop-jet Convair 580 flies 100 mph faster than the piston-powered Convair 440. Cruising speed of the 580 is approximately 350 mph. This means you can fly from Buffalo, New York to Akron/Canton, Ohio in 45 minutes instead of 62. Flight time between Indianapolis and Columbus, Ohio will be 42 instead of 58 minutes.

If time means dollars and cents to you, the increased speed of the Convair 580 can save your money.

LAKE CENTRAL AIRLINES

Weir Cook Airport • Indianapolis, Indiana 46241

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE
OCTOBER 16, 1966

Lake Central Airlines introduced the first of Lake Central's fleet of prop-jet Convair 580's to civic officials, chamber of commerce representatives, and members of press, radio and television today. They were guests of Lake Central on a scenic flight over the Terre Haute area.

The familiarization flight was scheduled to point up the introduction of the Convair 580 in scheduled service at Terre Haute last month. The twin-engine aircraft is powered by two 3750 horsepower turbine engines and Aeroproduct propellers, both manufactured by the Allison Division of General Motors.

Lake Central announced in May of this year it will convert eight of its Convair 340's to prop-jet Convair 580's. Also at that time, an option for eight additional conversions was announced.

The Convair 580 has a cruising speed of 350 mph and has a climb rate of 2250 feet a minute, three times greater than the Convair 340. The prop-jet has a seating capacity of 55, compared to the 44-passenger capacity on the 340.

Terre Haute is one of eleven cities on Lake Central's system which currently is served by the prop-jet Convair 580. The 580 provides service on a morning flight from Indianapolis to Chicago, via Terre Haute and Lafayette.

Lake Central also operated scenic flights over the Terre Haute area for the general public on Sunday afternoon, utilizing the Convair 580 equipment.

With the introduction of the Convair 580, Lake Central unveiled a new exterior paint scheme and a completely new interior, which features reclining seats with serving trays attached to each. The buffet area is in the forward cabin, and a three-seat lounge is in the rear of the cabin.

FOR RELEASE

Lake Central Airlines is one of five regional carriers equipping their fleets with the new propjet Convair 580.

Ninety of these aircraft are either in service or on order by five airlines---Lake Central, Frontier, Allegheny, Avenza and North Central. A total of 133 Convair 580s has been sold to airlines, private operators and government agencies.

Powering the Convair 580 are a pair of 3750-horsepower propjet engines manufactured by the Allison Division of General Motors. The propjet is similar to a straight jet engine in that both are gas turbines. But the Allison 501 differs in that it incorporates a propeller. The propeller, also built by Allison, makes it possible for the Convair 580 to take off quicker and land in shorter distances, utilizing existing runways at airports throughout the Lake Central system. At the same time the Convair 580 brings faster, jet-age speeds to passengers traveling Lake Central routes.

Repowering from 2600-horsepower piston engines to the Allison 501 gas turbine gives the Convair 580 a cruise speed of 350 miles an hour (some 90 miles an hour faster than CV340/440s) and a climb rate of 2250 feet a minute compared to a piston Convair's 750 feet a minute.

This increased available power also provides a significant safety feature in that the single engine climb capability of the Convair 580 approximates the two-engine climb capability of the standard Convair. The single engine cruise speed of the 580 matches the twin-engine cruise speed of the 340/440.

Allison propjet engines in Convair 580s operational with the Federal Aviation Agency, U. S. Air Force, Royal Canadian Air Force and private industry have logged more than 400,000 operating hours. Total commercial and military time on this type of Allison propjet tops the 22,000,000-hour mark.
